Barry,

I trust all is well with you and Jennifer. It was good to see you at the Mark Gungor Event a few weeks back – it was well attended and I felt Mark and the material were well received.

I am writing to make you aware of some Marriage / Marriage Preparation Course training coming up at First Alliance on Saturday, March 7th (see attachment). With your connection to First Alliance, I wanted to let you know ahead of time so you are not caught off guard by it. The training, and the decision to have it at First Alliance, stems from a conversation Elisa and I had with Ron Buschman a few weeks ago. He mentioned having a few couples from First interested in being trained, and we mentioned a church in the city looking for some training, which led us to coordinating a joint training session. We are also promoting the training with our fellow Alliance churches.

Ron tells me the two of you are doing a great job in leading the Course and have been a real blessing to First Alliance. I wanted to let you know about the training and how it came about, so there wasn't a misunderstanding.

Blessings to both of you – and thank-you for partnering with us in marriage ministry,

brad boschman

Learn how to run Relationship Central Courses

The aim of Relationship Central Courses is to provide practical, relevant help to parents, couples and individuals in different areas of family life and relationships.

The Marriage Course is for any couple

the marriage course

who wants to invest in their relationship, whether you have been together 1 or 61 years and whether you have a strong relationship or are struggling.

the marriage preparation course

Most couples spend count-less hours preparing for the wedding, but little, if any time preparing for married life. The Marriage Preparation Course can help you develop strong foundations for a lasting marriage.

Saturday March 7, 9AM - 12:30PM

Cost: $20
